DEATH REMOVES JOHN F. DRYDEN

Ex-Senator from New Jersey Succumbs to Illness.

FOUNDER OF PRUDENTIAL CO.

Big Insurance Concern Began in 1873 as Widows' and Orphans' Friendly Society—Deceased Leaves Wife, Son and Daughter.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 25.—Ex-Senator Dryden died at 6 p. m.

Mr. Dryden was operated on for gall stones last Thursday. The operation was successful and he was recovering when on Tuesday he was seized with a chill and ether pneumonia developed. After that his condition grew worse.

New York, Nov. 25.—John Fairfield Dryden was United States senator from New Jersey from 1902 to 1907. He was president of the Prudential Insurance company of America, which he established, from 1881 until his death.

He was born on Aug. 7, 1839, at Temple Mills, near Farmington, Me. His family came from Northampton, England, and included in its relationship John Dryden, the poet. John F. Dryden entered Yale college from the farm in 1861, but was forced to leave by ill health just before graduating. Yale gave him the degree of M. A. in 1900.

Mr. Dryden became a life insurance agent. In 1869 he came upon a report by Elizur Wright, insurance commissioner of Massachusetts, expressing doubt whether industrial insurance as practiced in England would succeed in this country. Mr. Dryden set out to prove that Mr. Wright was wrong. He spent several years in mastering the theory and practice of insurance. In 1873 with little capital he went to Newark to get the help of several citizens in founding the Widows' and Orphans' Friendly Society, which became the Prudential in 1875. Mr. Dryden was secretary until 1881, when he succeeded N. F. Blanchard as president. The company now has 20,000 employes.

In 1896 and 1900 Mr. Dryden was a presidential elector from New Jersey. In 1902 he was elected United States senator for five years, to fill the unexpired term of William J. Sewell, deceased.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Cynthia J. Fairfield of New Haven, Conn., and two children, Forest Fairchild Dryden and Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser.

CRAWLS BACK INTO JAIL

Recaptured Prisoner Compelled to Scale Wall and Enter Window.

Indianapolis, Nov. 25. — Gus West, known in Pittsburg as the "millionaire kid," crawled back into the Marion county jail the same way he crawled out last June—only this time Gus wore a pair of well wrought handcuffs and Sheriff Woessener stood by.

West was surprised when Sheriff Woessener, who brought him back from Pittsburg, led him to the iron fence which surrounds the jail. West couldn't quite catch the drift of things. "You're going to go back the same way you came out," said the sheriff. It was uncomfortable work, but West scaled the fence and made his way to a basement window, climbed through the window and entered the basement of the jail. Then he made his way to the jailer's office on the first floor. "I just wanted him to know that I knew how he got out," said the sheriff. West had been sent to jail for six months for petit larceny.

The accident was due to a mistake in orders.

With this action the state will wind up its connection with the affairs of the defunct bank of which Ex-State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier was president, and although the bank had $685,587.79 of the state's money at the time it was closed, every dollar of this amount will be received back.

The bank has paid commercial depositors dividends amounting to 50 per cent of their deposits and savings depositors 81¼ per cent, the total dividends amounting to $706,864. There is still due the state $40,889, but this amount is covered by a surety bond of $25,000 and the personal bond of Mr. Glazier's sureties as state treasurer for $150,000.

GRAND JURY INQUIRING

Wants to Know What John J. McNamara Did with Union Money.

Indianapolis, Nov. 25. — In connection with the discovery that John J. McNamara, under arrest at Los Angeles for dynamiting, expended from $500 to $1,000 per month as treasurer of the iron workers and made no account of the uses to which the money was put it is possible that the federal grand jury may bring to light the fact that this money was used for purchasing dynamite and paying James McNamara and Ortie McManigal to destroy structures on which nonunion men were employed.

The full and complete explanation of the manner in which this money was spent has never been made to the membership of the Iron Workers' association. According to what is said to have been the practice of the executive board the money was set aside by the board and McNamara was allowed to use his discretion in spending it to promote the orgnization.

FORMER YPSI PASTOR DEAD

REV. CHAS. EDMUND HEWITT PASSES AWAY AT HOME IN CHICAGO.

Rev. Charles Edmund Hewitt, D. D., who was pastor of the Ypsilanti First Baptist church from 1863 to 1868, has passed away at his Chicago home. The Chicago Tribune contains the following sketch of Mr. Hewitt:

"Rev. Charles Edmund Hewitt, D. D., a prominent Baptist clergyman, died at his residence, 5828 Woodlawn Ave., on Saturday evening. He was born at Galway, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1836. He served as pastor in Ypsilanti, Mich., 1863-1868; Bloomington, Ill., 1868-1877; Centennial Baptist church, Chicago, 1877-1880; Pearia, 1880-1889; secretary of the Baptist Theological union, Chicago, 1880-892; student secretary of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, 1892 to the time of his death. Dr. Hewitt was also during the last twenty-two years of his life secretary of the Northwestern Baptist Education society, and also was president of the Illinois Baptist State convention. He was a trustee of the first university of Chicago. Dr. Hewitt was a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

"Dr. Hewitt is survived by Mrs. Hewitt, two sons, Herbert E. Hewitt of Pearia and Henry H. Hewitt of Denver, Colo., and two daughters, Mrs. Florence Callender and Mrs. Helen B. Wessels, both of Chicago."

Dr. Hewitt's wife was Miss Helen Thompson, an Ypsilanti girl. She and her sister, Miss Amelia Thompson, now deceased, resided in Ypsilanti years ago with their parents.

STONY CREEK MEN SCORE BIG SUCCESS

Both the men and the women of the Stony Creek M. E. church scored a big success on Thursday at the parsonage,—the men for their well-prepared, capably served chicken-pie dinner, and the women for a double reason: first, because they made very easily about twenty-five dollars from a sale of aprons, and, secondly, because of their superior entertainment.

This entertainment took the form of compiling and reading an original magazine. It was aimed to have just the features which are found in popular magazines. First came a poem, composed and set to music and sung by Mrs. Henry Champion. It was strictly up-to-date, having for its theme no other than "The Men's Dinner." Mrs. Champion had in fact written two poems for the occasion and ventured to present first the one she considered the better. Upon being given a hearty encore, however, she brought forth the second, which was also pronounced capital.

Mrs. Lee Stowell read an original poem, taking for her subject a recent surprise party which had been given Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Coe on their crystal anniversary.

Mrs. Arthur Coe then gave "Answers to Correspondents." Husbands who had grown cold, husbands who did not like warmed up potatoes and other similar familiar catastrophes were treated with boldness and tact. Mrs. Marion Merrit was responsible for the "Neighborhood News" column and made it very amusing. The advertisements proved Mrs. Grover Colby a very fine publicity agent.

The first number of this magazine was such a success that it was determined to have a Christmas number. As a supplement to this November number, Dr. Ramsdell and Dr. Stalker, who were present, gave excellent brief addresses.

There were fully eighty present at the dinner.

PACKERS WIN A DELAY

Their Hearing Is Now Set for Wednesday, Dec. 6.

Judge Carpenter Grants Extension of Time in Trial of Indicted Chicago Beef Men.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Judge George A. Carpenter of the United States district court, granted the ten indicted Chicago packers a continuance on motion of their counsel. The trial had been set to begin next Monday, but Judge Carpenter continued it until Dec. 6.

Attorneys for the government did not object to the plea for delay.

The court's first decision, later amended, was:

"I see no reason why this case should not go on Monday. It has been delayed long enough. We will begin the examination of jurors at that time, but will not call any witnesses until Dec. 6. And in the meantime the United States supreme court can hand down its decision."

Judge Carpenter then changed this decision, by saying:

"On second thought, I think there will be no hardship to the government, so I will continue the entire proceedings until Dec. 6. This gives the defendants every advantage of the law."

Levy Mayer then asked for another day's extension, on the plea that he might not be able to get back from Washington in time, but Judge Carpenter refused this.

DECEMBER 1 THE LAST DAY

TIME FOR FILING CITIZENSHIP PETITIONS ENDS FRIDAY.

Next Friday, December 1st, will be the last day on which Petitions can be made for Citizenship, so as to get into the February hearing in the Circuit Court. This is very important to the many who have not completed their papers and therefore cannot legally vote at the spring election. There are over two hundred who have taken out their first papers, that is, made their declaration since May 8th, 1892, the large majority of whom have not completed their papers. By the state law only those who before this date declared their intentions, can vote on first papers. The first papers alone, however, do not entitle them to vote at school elections, or if they wish to travel in foreign parts to secure a passport. With the present stringent emigration laws, this is a matter of considerable importance, as many are turned back even when being property owners in the United States. Every one who is not sure of his position, should inquire at the County Clerk's office. The new general index ordered by the Board of Supervisors, has now been completed by County Clerk Miller, who can give full information with only a few minutes' search. It is proving of great convenience. Many who were not sure if their fathers had taken out full papers, have convinced themselves that they had or had not.

MURDER CHARGE FROM BLOW

Coloma Man's Death Leads to Arrest of Benton Harbor Man.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 25.—Gilsen Crumb of Coloma is dead here and Walter Sauerbier, baseball pitcher and son of Former Chief of Police Sauerbier, is charged with Crumb's murder.

Crumb died at Mercy hospital following an operation. He was suffering from concussion of the brain. He was hit by Sauerbier and knocked unconscious, never regaining consciousness. A hole at the back of Crumb's head proves, so the police declare, that Sauerbier struck Crumb with some weapon. Sauerbier says he only hit the man with his bare fist and the defense will be that a fractured skull was caused by Crumb falling upon a cement sidewalk.

Crumb was a laborer and leaves a widow and children. Sauerbier is a young man, powerfully built and comes from a well-connected family in St. Joseph. He explains the attack on Crumb by calling it a "drunken man's row."

BOY SCOUTS HAVE INVITATION TO GO TO PLYMOUTH

The Boy Scouts of Ypsilanti are gaining an enviable reputation as demonstrators of the movement. Their president received Friday a communication from Plymouth, inquiring on what terms the boys would come to that city and show the people there what the movement stands for. It will be replied that the boys will be very glad to go there simply for their expenses, for every Boy Scout feels a laudable interest in helping to spread this movement.

AUDIT NEARLY COMPLETE

Whether Durand Bank Will Continue Business Is Uncertain.

Durand, Mich., Nov. 25.—The audit of the books of the First Commercial and Savings bank, which has proven a larger job than anticipated, has nearly been completed by the banking commissioner's department.

It is probable the bank will be opened some day next week, when the checks of depositors will be honored. Whether the bank will continue business or not is still an open question.

CANADA WELCOMES THE POPULAR "PRINCESS PAT."

PERHAPS the most popular of all the "popular Connaughts," as the duke and his family are known in England, is the Princess Patricia—"Princess Pat," as she is affectionately called. The appointment of her father to the governor generalship of Canada has greatly pleased the people of the Dominion, since no member of the British royal family has ever before been sent to govern an oversea division of the empire, and the presence of royalty will insure a brilliant social season at Ottawa. Not only her youth, good looks and high spirits—the princess is twenty-five and the beauty of the family—but her love of outdoor sports may be expected to endear her to the Canadians. She is an excellent horsewoman and hunts with the best English packs, plays golf and tennis, sails a boat and knows how to land a salmon.

TEN HOUR LAW TO BE ENFORCED IN YPSILANTI

Ypsilanti's stores, factories and other business places have been thoroughly inspected the last two days by Mrs. Beatrice Massey, of Lansing, official factory inspector. In an interview with Mrs. Massey, she said: "All the factories I have found strictly within the law, and I have talked with the girls employed there as well as with the proprietors. However, your merchants have been almost without exception requiring their clerks to work more than ten hours on Saturday. It seems to be a matter of ignorance of the law, but if it occurs again, it will be a more serious matter."

One of the merchants remarked to Mrs. Massey that, in the last analysis, the public is the real offender—the public that waits until nine o'clock on Saturday night to do shopping, the public that buys Christmas presents the week before Christmas or the Saturday before Christmas. In this view Mrs. Massey heartily concurs. Nearly every cause for grievance could be cut abruptly short if the public would stay away from the stores on Saturday evenings and do their Christmas shopping at rational times. This inspection, occurring as it does just before the Christmas shopping season, is considered to be most timely.

As compared with other towns Mrs. Massey said that Ypsilanti was the first town of its size where she had found such a general ignorance of the ten-hour law. Conditions here are good, however, as regards that part of the law reading that the total number of working-hours in a week shall not exceed 54. Certain merchants have mistakenly thought they could let a clerk off for part of a day and then require her to work more than ten hours on Saturday. This cannot be done.

Anyone can enter a complaint respecting a violation of this law by addressing the commissioner of labor at Lansing. Each case is thoroughly and immediately investigated by Mrs. Beatrice Massey, inspector for women, or by L. C. Watkins, inspector for men. Both of these inspectors may penalize an offender for a violation of the law. An interesting feature of the work is that never has there been a case lost. Sometimes a case has even been carried to the supreme court, but, even so, the decision has been always on the side of the commissioner of labor. The absolute validity of the law has thus been established beyond shadow of question.

One point strongly emphasized by Mrs. Massey was that the law eventually works no hardship for the employer, though this is not evident at first. Later, it is admitted to be true by the business people who have subscribed to the law.

Mrs. Massey reports that her reception everywhere in Ypsilanti was most kind, a fact not surprising in view of the graciousness and tact, combined with womanly sincerity, which Mrs. Massey invariably manifests. In one place she ordered additional stools procured for the clerks; in one factory she ordered the machinery guarded more effectually. In both cases there was entire willingness shown to carry out her requests.

Each town and city presents a separate problem, Mrs. Massey stated, and she finds a very keen pleasure in exploring these problems and working them out and likewise in the thought that all through the state of Michigan the welfare of every girl who works is closely and paternally conserved.

At Mrs. Massey's request, a portion of Section 9 of the law applying to her work is herewith inserted:

"No male under the age of eighteen years, and no female shall be employed in any factory, mill warehouse, workshop, clothing, dressmaking or millinery establishment, or any place where the manufacture of any kind of goods is carried on, or where any goods are prepared for manufacture, or in any laundry, store, shop, or any other mercantile establishment for a

In less than a month after its publication in England Soyer's book, describing his new system of cooking in paper bags, had sold over 60,000 copies, and the supply of paper bags, owing to the immediate and unlooked-for demand, had become exhausted. American housewives have the opportunity of learning all about the new system of cookery through The Chicago Daily News, which is publishing descriptive articles and recipes every day. In this connection it is interesting to note the opinion of the paper expressed by Mr. Hugh Evan Smith of London on his recent visit to this country when, speaking of The Chicago Daily News, he characterized it as "one of the most marvelous productions of the country." More people in Chicago read The Chicago Daily News than read any other Chicago newspaper.

WISCONSIN'S NEW INCOME TAX LAW.

More progressiveness seems to crystalize into practical form in Wisconsin than in any other state. Many of our readers will no doubt have read during the past year how a group of legislators organized themselves into a sort of club and studied diligently in the preparation of measures to promote the public welfare. They were of the "common people" so called. But they were so uncommon as to attract magazine articles, showing the type of men and the "plain living and high thinking" propensities of these virile public servants.

It is not surprising then that practical legislation should be born in a legislature containing this sort of civil fibre. On this new income tax law the editor of The Saturday Evening Post makes the following comment:

"Under the new Wisconsin law, which goes into effect next year, incomes above eight hundred dollars a year as to single persons and twelve hundred as to married persons are taxed; but for each child in the family under eighteen years of age, or other dependent, there is a further exemption of two hundred dollars. For an average family, then, the tax begins when the income reaches sixteen or eighteen hundred dollars. It is one per cent on the first thousand dollars above the exemptions, increasing a quarter of one per cent on each additional thousand up to five thousand; then increasing one-half of one per cent up to twelve thousand. Above that it is six per cent. This is intended to supplant the farcial personal-property tax; and any personal property tax that a citizen pays is deducted from his income tax.

"This Wisconsin law is interesting, because sooner of later—sooner, probably, rather than later—the income tax will be a permanent feature of our revenue system, and all of us enjoying incomes above a certain amount will be subject to it. The first question is, What income should be taxed?

"The exemption is small in Wisconsin. The Federal law of 1894 began with incomes above four thousand dollars; but there was no abatement, of course, on account of any personal-property tax paid by the incomeholder. Under the Wisconsin law a man, with wife and two children, whose income is three hundred dollars a month would pay twenty-two dollars and a half—roughly one-third of one week's income—which is not an excessive contribution to the public purse.

"This is the fairest form of taxation yet devised, for under it a man pays more nearly according to his ability to pay. Thus a married man pays less than a single man; a married man supporting children pays less than one supporting none; one whose income exceeds his reasonable needs pays more proportionately than one whose income is below that point."

FOUR TAR MEN GET YEAR EACH

Mob Members Who Confessed Are Given Sentences.

JURY REMAINS DEADLOCKED

Twelve Good Men and True Still Deliberating Over Guilt or Innocence of Accused Men in Lincoln Center, Kansas.

Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 25.—The three confessed members of the tar party, E. G. Clark, Jay Fitzwater and Watson Scranton, were sentenced to a year each in jail by Judge Grover.

Ed Aicord, who devoyed Miss Mary Chamberlain to the place where she was tarred, was sentenced to one year in jail. He had already been in jail seventy-seven days.

The four men sentenced were told they would be given ample time to arrange their business affairs before being committed to jail.

Attorney Milliken excepted to the sentence, saying it was excessive. Thirty days, he suggested, would have been severe enough punishment.

None of the men seemed surprised at the action of the court. They believe they will be paroled after they have served a short time, it is said.

Fewer than twenty persons were present when sentence was pronounced. As sentence was pronounced each man arose. Clark was sentenced first, Scranton next and Fitzwater last.

"Have you any reason to give why sentence should not be passed?" the court asked each man.

"No," came firmly from each.

Neither man displayed any emotion when sentenced. Constructively, explained the court, the prisoners would be henceforth in the sheriff's charge. All of them, however, are free on bonds.

The jury in the case of Sherrill Clark, John Schmidt and A. N. Simms, tried as accessories to the tarring outrage, requested that a part of the testimony be read to them. This was done and the jury again retired.

CUMMINS SENTENCED

New York, Nov. 25.—William J. Cummins, the Nashville, Tenn., banker and the head of the suspended Carnegie Trust company of this city, recently convicted of the theft of $140,000 from a trust fund held by the Carnegie company, was sentenced by Justice Davis in the supreme court to an indeterminate term in the state prison of four years and eight months to eight years and eight months.

Fire Many Shots at Train.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 25.—Railroad detectives have been quietly working for several days on what is believed to have been an attempt to take human lives near Knox, Starke county, where men lying in concealment fired at a passenger train, with the result that a number of windows in one of the coaches were shattered and the woodwork riddled.

FIND MAN'S BODY IN SHARK.

Large Fish That Devoured Sailor Was Harpooned and Shot.

A dozen men armed with rifles killed a giant shark which had devoured Jules Antoine off the Florida coast. Portions of Antoine's body were found in the shark.

Sailors on the British steamer Aldersgate saw the old man fall overboard. A shark seized the body, and the crews of several vessels began a general shark hunt.

The monster was more than twelve feet in length. Several harpoons with lines attached were used to bring him to the western bay shore. After being hauled up on the sands the fish slashed about until shot to death. When the body was cut open almost the entire corpse of Antoine was found inside and was identified by tattoo marks. There were also pieces of clothing and his boots, which bore the imprint of the sextuple rows of teeth.

A piece of coral rock weighing about eight pounds was also found in the shark's stomach.

The age of the fish is estimated at more than a hundred years. It is the largest man eater captured in these waters in years. The skin will be stuffed. It has been offered to the Smithsonian institution.

Next Session of Congress May Abound In Fireworks

Tariff Revision and Trust Legislation Among the Chief Subjects.

First Fight Likely to Come on the Question of Arbitration Treaties.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE chief subjects awaiting action in the long session of congress, which opens on Dec. 4, are tariff revision, national incorporation of trusts, other trust legislation, regulation of the stock and bond issues of railroads, a parcels post, second class postage on magazines, direct election of senators, economy in appropriations and business methods in the departments, the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France, commercial treaties with two Central American republics, tolls for the Panama canal, currency reform and the reports of investigating committees.

The president has made it plain that he will recommend tariff revision only on schedules that have been investigated by the tariff board. This will mean the wool schedule at the opening of congress and the cotton schedule shortly after, with a possibility of reports on steel, on the chemical schedule and on some others during the session. The first fight will come on wool. The issues in this struggle are already fairly clear. The stand pat element will oppose any revision at all. The president will recommend revision in accordance with the findings of the tariff board and based on the principle that the duties should equalize the difference of production cost at home and abroad and provide an additional margin of profit for the American producer. The progressive Republicans will support the president's theory, but as a matter of fact will favor more radical reductions than those he recommends. The Democrats, who have the actual framing of the tariff bills, will act on the theory of a revenue tariff, but will seek some basis of compromise whereby a working agreement may be reached between themselves and the Republican revisionists.

How the Fight Will Start.

The tariff board is not the only body that has been investigating the wool, cotton and other schedules. The ways and means committee of the house has also been busy. The actual course of procedure will be that the report of the tariff board on the wool schedule and the president's recommendations relating thereto will be referred to the ways and means committee, which will use this material and that which it has already gathered to frame a bill revising this particular schedule. The house may be expected to pass this measure substantially in the form reported by the ways and means committee. In the senate the insurgents, under the lead of Senator La Follette, still have the balance of power and may be expected to amend the bill in much the same way that they did during the extra session. The measure, with the amendments, will then go to conference, where an agreement between the two houses may be reached. Then the bill will go to the president, and he will sign it if—

That is the big "if" on which hangs the fate of tariff revision in this congress. The president will sign the measure if it is in substantial agreement with the findings of the tariff board. Can the Democrats and progressives agree on a bill answering these requirements? Can they agree on a bill substantially different from that vetoed by the president during the extra session? This is the big question in American politics. On its answer may hang the fate of the next presidential election.

The course of procedure followed on the wool schedule will also be that on cotton and on any other schedules reported by the tariff board. It is also possible that the Democrats of the house may frame a general tariff revision bill merely as a matter of record. This would hardly get past the senate and even if it did would be vetoed by the president.

Trust Legislation.

President Taft has already made it plain that he will renew his recommendations for a federal incorporation act. This is one of the list of policies he placed before the previous congress, but did not press, concentrating his forces on the railroad bill, postal savings banks and other measures that he deemed of more immediate importance. Now he is ready to renew his advocacy of federal incorporation and to fight for it as one of his chief policies. The objection urged by the Democrats to this measure is that if enacted it would deprive the states of their control of interstate corporations. This would leave the trusts free to concentrate their whole energies on an effort to control the national government. If they succeeded the people of the various states would be without redress.

As to additional trust legislation, the president does not favor tinkering with the Sherman law except to supplement, strengthen or more clearly define it. Yet it is fairly certain that an attempt will be made in the house to put teeth in the act, eliminate the "rule of reason" put in by the supreme court and make much more drastic the criminal clause. Heretofore those convicted under the criminal section of the law have been fined. A small fine means about as much to one of these big corporations as being "touched" for a quarter does to the average man. Representative Henry, chairman of the committee on rules, proposes to make the penalty for violating the anti-trust law imprisonment for a minimum of two years. He thinks that if a few of the trust magnates were sent to the penitentiary for two years or more it might breed more respect for the law.

In place of federal incorporations the last Democratic national platform favored a federal license law which would not interfere with the power of the states to regulate corporations. In this connection it proposed punishing a corporation for establishing a monopoly, a certain percentage of the trade in a given commodity, say 25 per cent, being evidence of a monopoly in that commodity. It may be that an attempt will be made to amend the federal incorporation measure in conformity with these ideas.

Regulating Watered Stock.

When the senate struck out of the railroad bill the stock and bond regulation provision it provided for a commission to inquire into the subject. This commission has now made an exhaustive examination into railroad securities and is understood to be ready to report. On the basis of its findings the president will again recommend government regulation of the capitalization of common carriers. The general purpose of such legislation would be to prevent overcapitalization and to discourage the issue of fictitious securities—in a word, to squeeze the water from railroad stocks or at least to prevent the pumping in of more water. This does not go as far as Senator La Follette, who insists on physical valuation of railroad properties as a basis for rate making. La Follette is certain to urge physical valuation at this session, but there is a question whether either his plan or the president's will go through.

The fight for a parcels post will be one of the features of this congress. Both the president and Postmaster General Hitchcock are urging this, their plan being to try it on the rural routes first. Senator Bourne, chairman of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads, has made an exhaustive study of the subject and is in favor of going further. He advocates a universal parcels post in place of the partial and experimental one proposed by the administration.

Following the investigation of the Hughes committee into second class postage rates there is certain to be a renewed effort to raise the postage on magazines. This has been attempted several times before, but has been beaten. It is hardly probable that it will be approved by a Democratic house and by a senate in which the insurgents hold the balance of power. On the other hand, a bill may be pushed to reorganize the postoffice department, and something may be done to reduce the railway mail pay.

Popular Election of Senators.

The amendment to the constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators passed both houses by the requisite majority during the special session, but an amendment was inserted in the senate giving the federal government control over such elections. This was objected to by southern Democrats as an attempt to revive the force bill, and the house refused to concur in the amendment. An agreement between the two houses had not been reached at the time congress adjourned. The new session will take up the matter at the point where the old one left off, and it is probable that some agreement will be reached.

Representative Henry also promises to bring in a constitutional amendment to change inauguration day from March 4 to the last Thursday in April. Under its terms congress would meet in January, the new congress going into session within two months instead of waiting more than a year, as at present. This matter of changing the date of inauguration has been before every session of recent years, but this time Representative Henry is confident that it will pass.

General labor legislation, including a bill to regulate injunctions, will almost certainly pass the house, but may meet a check from the senate or the president. Mr. Taft has his own ideas on the subject of injunctions and is not likely to approve a measure conforming to the injunction plank in the Democratic national platform, which has the approval of the labor unions.

Intimations have been made that the publicity law, which now applies to the election of representatives in congress, will be extended to all national elections, or at least the Democratic house would pass such a bill, in which event neither the senate nor the president would probably assume the responsibility of defeating it. If made a law this would require the publication both before and after election of receipts and expenditures by national committees, candidates for president and senators.

The Arbitration Treaties.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the first fight of the session will be over peace, and it will be quite a battle at that. President Taft broke all records of presidential journeys to talk up the arbitration treaties, among other things, and he proposes to see them through. The senate has already indicated the desire to amend the treaties, wishing to retain its own prerogatives and to eliminate from the treaties certain subjects, such as the Monroe doctrine, the Panama canal and others. Treaties with Honduras and Nicaragua are also awaiting ratification.

The report of the monetary commission places the question of currency reform squarely before this congress. In a general way the report recommends the creation of a national reserve association and the issuance of what is known as an asset currency. Both propositions are certain to arouse opposition.

Committees from both houses have visited the Panama canal since the adjournment of the special session and now will be ready to place before congress the subject of tolls. One of the proposals agitating the country is that the United States government pay the tolls of American ships. This would practically amount to a subsidy. In this connection the subject of an American merchant marine and of a mail subsidy will bob up in this congress, as in all others of recent times. The fate of a subsidy measure, however, is exceedingly doubtful.

Nor should it be forgotten that the various investigating committees have yet to report, insuring a large amount of fireworks; also the appropriation bills are to pass, and here it is that economy will get in its work, resulting in more pyrotechnic displays.

Likewise it should be recalled that a presidential election takes place next year and that this congress will be quite busy shaping the issues thereof.

NO EMBEZZLEMENT SHOWN

Ex-Lansing Postal Telegraph Manager Cleared of Charge.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 25. — Ray M. Lavalley, former manager of the local office of the Postal Telegraph company, who was arrested in Grand Rapids last week on a charge of embezzling funds of the company while in this city, was discharged in police court upon recommendation of the prosecutor.

There was nothing criminal in Lavalley's management of the local office, it is said, as a settlement had been made when he left, and it was known at that time that there was an apparent shortage. Upon advice of the auditor of the district, however, the matter was allowed to rest until after the accounts had been checked up in the head office of the company, and this has not yet been done.

PROMINENT LECTURER TO VISIT PARENTS IN PITTSFIELD NEXT WEEK

John A. Bohnet, the eldest son of Adam Bohnet of Pittsfield, is en route to the home of his parents to join in the Christmas family reunion and spend the holidays with his father and mother, who are now in their eighty-second year. The five children of the family will be together for the first time on Christmas in twenty years. The family consists of John, Jacob, Christian, Elizabeth and Christiana, the latter three being married and living in Michigan. Mr. Bohnet is touring the United States under the auspices of the International Bible Students' association and lecturing to Bible students on theological subjects. One of his topics is "The Great Pyramid of Egypt" wherein he shows a scriptural correspondence between the Bible and the Pyramids. He treats the subject scientifically and astronomically. The present trip is his seventh to the Pacific coast states. He expects to remain with his parents about a week.

WALK OVERS IN LEAD AT END OF FIRST QUARTER

Thursday night Keusch & Shepherd were forced to forfeit three games to Schafarik & Sinkule, other engagements keeping them away from the match.

The first quarter ended Thursday night, each team has met every other team in the league and some idea of the ability of the teams and individual members can now be formed. The team race is very close and for anyone to name a winner would be impossible.

The Walk-Overs took the lead at the beginning of the season and have maintained their position ever since, although they are gradually being overtaken by the Travelers' Cafe and Horner & Lawrence teams who are tied for second place with DeWitt's Regals a close third. The balance of the teams are far behind but two of them at least are to be feared, namely, Carpenters and Sullivan-Cook teams who are going at a rapid pace.

For individual honors, as usual, Grimston is out in front with an average of 169 for the 21 games, three points ahead of his nearest opponent.

For the prizes offered the high average man on each team by the business men, the leaders are as follows:

Walk-Overs, Zeigler.
Horner & Lawrence, Cooney.
Travelers' Cafe, Hayden.
DeWitt's Regals, Thompson.
Schafarik & Sinkule, Grimston.
Sullivan-Cook, Gaudy.
Carpenters, Riley.
Keusch & Shepherd, James.

The ten highest individual averages are as follows:

Grimston, 169; Hayden, 166; Cooney, 160; Korbel, 160; James, 159; Zeigler, 158; Thompson, 156; D. Bell, 154; Comstock, 153; Christensen, 152.

The standings in the five- and two-man leagues for the week are as follows:

	W	L	Pct.
Walk-Overs	15	6	.715
Travelers' Cafe	13	8	.619
Horner & Lawrence	13	8	.619

CHELSEA BOWLERS DEFEAT LOCALS BY NINE PINS

Friday night at the City Bowling Alleys the Chelsea team defeated Ypsilanti in an exciting contest by the narrow margin of nine pins.

The first game Chelsea won by 27 pins, this being made possible by the good work of their star man, Seitz, who rolled 213. In the second game Chelsea increased their lead to 85. In the third game Ypsilanti woke up and made a hard effort to overcome their opponent's lead but the handicap was too great, being able to win by but 77 pins, 9 pins short of victory. In this game Ypsilanti rolled the highest team score yet made on the City Alleys, getting 899.

Seitz, of Chelsea, was easily the best of the evening, getting 213 for high score and an average of 191. The score in detail follows:

Treatment For Insects In Stored Grains and Seeds

By R. H. PETTIT, Entomologist of Michigan Experiment Station, Michigan Agricultural College

THE treatment for dried grains containing insects is comparatively easy, provided the grain or seed is in tight bins or barrels capable of being tightly and quickly closed. Old carpets, blankets, etc., often will be found useful in helping to make the bins tight.

Measure the inside of the bin, counting in the air space above the grain if the bin is not entirely full, and place some old pans or plates on top of the grain. Then for every cubic foot of space in the bin put a dram of liquid carbon bisulphide in the pans and quickly close the bin. Thus a pound of the liquid will suffice for about 100 cubic feet of space or a little more, or for about 100 bushels of grain. This treatment is far more effective during warm weather than in cold. During severe cold weather the insects are dormant and resist the action of the fumes quite successfully.

If the seed of grain is more than two or three feet deep in the bin the liquid should be poured into it at some depth in order to insure its spreading evenly and filling all the space treated. This is easily done with a piece of gas pipe fitted with a wooden stick for its entire length. The pipe with the stick in place is thrust down halfway to the bottom of the bin, the stick withdrawn and the liquid poured down through the pipe. The stick merely prevents the pipe from becoming filled when thrust into place. The bin should remain tightly closed for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. A longer exposure is likely to injure the germinative power in some seeds.

The liquid carbon bisulphide on being liberated will be quickly transformed into a gas, which, being heavier than the air, settles to the bottom and fills all the air spaces between the seeds or kernels. The liquid costs about 30 cents for a single pound or five pounds for a dollar. The work must be done in the daytime, away from lamps, stoves or fire of any sort. No fire must be allowed to come near until everything has been thoroughly aired, for the gas or fumes are very explosive when mixed with air. Grain should be shoveled over several times. Great care must be observed to breathe as little as possible of the fumes, as they are very poisonous and will as easily produce death among men as among insects.

Killing and Dressing Chickens

By J. O. LINTON, Instructor In Poultry Husbandry, Michigan Agricultural College

THE old ax or hatchet always has and probably always will be a common way of killing the Sunday dinner. Since the fowl is generally eaten right away the condition of the carcass is not of great importance, but when chickens are killed a few days or longer before marketing care should be taken that the appearance is as attractive as possible, and the keeping qualities are greatly improved by proper killing and dressing.

A visit to the local market will generally show more or less dressed chickens, many of them purple and scarred in flesh, with little red spots about the body as though the blood had followed the feathers when plucked, which is practically what happened, every bruise and thumb mark showing, presenting an undesirable appearance. These conditions are due to improper killing and dressing.

"Sticking" is as easy as chopping off the head and as the bird is hanging when stuck may be allowed to bleed freely without bumping about and bruising itself as it does flopping when thrown down after losing its head. But "sticking" must be done properly to secure best results.

There are two large veins in the neck of the fowl—one on either side running the whole length and united by a cross vein just below and behind the ear. This connecting vein does not run straight across the neck, but is farther in front at the right than on the left side. In making the stick a knife with a small blade about two inches long should be used and stuck inside the chicken's mouth against the right side somewhat so as to strike the vein and a clean slash made. This will cause thorough bleeding and should be accompanied by "braining," which destroys the senses, relieving any suffering of the fowl and causing entire relaxation.

The "braining" is done by running the blade up through the little natural opening in the roof of the mouth between the eyes to the edge of the brain, where a slight twist or a backward and forward movement of the knife should paralyze the fowl. This causes the bird to "drop its feathers"—that is, all muscular resistance ceases, and even dry picking can be easily done if desired.

A different method of killing and bleeding is similar to wringing the neck, but is only unjointing or breaking at the first joint, uncoupling, but not detaching, the head. Holding the bird by the legs in the left hand, the right should grasp the head of the chicken, and then by pulling directly down and pushing the head a little backward a break is made. As the fowl hangs it bleeds into the neck, and no blood need be spilled till the head is cut off later. This makes a clean operation and causes satisfactory bleeding and "braining" at once.

As to dressing, the hot water method is most common, but often is not properly done. The water should be at nearly boiling point, and the bird should be held by the feet and head and immersed once with the back upward and once with the breast upward, leaving it only a short time in the water, picking as soon as possible if the feathers are "started," being careful not to rub the skin, as discoloration easily occurs in this manner. When the feathers are removed "plumping" may be done if desired by plunging the fowl into the scalding water, leaving it there a few seconds and then placing it in cold water to cool. This is done only to make a more pleasing appearance to the carcass.

Dry picking takes perhaps a trifle longer in some cases, but leaves the carcass in the very best condition if reasonable care is taken not to tear the skin. Almost as soon as the bird is "stuck" or the neck broken plucking may be commenced. By trying a few feathers from the back or sides it may be determined whether or not the feathers are dropped. If not, braining may be done again. If so, it is well to pull the large feathers from the wings and tail and then proceed to the body. Dry picking requires some practice, but with a little skill may be done very rapidly and is a great improvement over any other method. The choicest dressed poultry which reaches the eastern markets is all dry picked, dry cooled and dry packed.

Any locality has patrons who appreciate choice, neat articles of food and would enjoy the production of such.

If the dressed fowls are to be kept any length of time they should be starved several hours before killing and then left undrawn, but for immediate use the consumer is generally better pleased with the drawn carcass.

Some of these methods of preparation are almost as easy, time saving and far more satisfactory than chopping off the head and heating the kettle of water for scalding. This not only applies to the market producer, but to any one dressing fowls.

SIZE OF POULTRY PEN.

Four or Five Square Feet Per Bird Required.

The size of pen depends entirely upon the purpose for which it is to be used. The smaller the flock the greater the production that can be expected from each individual and the greater the labor and expense incurred. For special mating pens to accommodate eight to twenty birds fulfill the requirements, while for laying pens to accommodate fifty are more economical, although as many as 500 to 1,000 are sometimes kept in one pen, a system not to be practiced by the poultryman until he thoroughly understands the business.

While no definite rule can be made relative to floor space per bird, because it depends upon the attention and care exercised, yet in general four to five square feet of floor space is considered a safe estimate of the amount required under ordinary conditions.

Dust Bath For Poultry.

Provisions should be made for a dust bath in every pen, for the problem of dealing with lice is greatly reduced by its presence. The objection that it creates dust in the house is greatly overcome by its beneficial features, and a closed bath with a special window in the south side and accessible by a small opening can be easily constructed which has an additional advantage in that it is comparatively free from the danger of any dirt or litter accumulating from the pen. Fine road dust, finely sifted coal ashes, etc., are very desirable materials for the dust bath, and the addition of lime, tobacco dust and patent preparations tends to make it more effective.

Value of Farm Manure.

Farm manure is too valuable not to care for it. It will add a new store of plant food to the soil, combines with the soil and makes some of the insoluble plant food available, makes the soil warm up earlier in the spring, makes the soil hold more water for the plants, improves the tilth of the sandy and clay soils, increases the number of soil organisms, promotes fermentation and supplies food to the organisms which help to make plant food available.

All brush and rubbish in the orchard should be gathered and burned before winter. Such things harbor all kinds of pests, such as rabbits and mice, which are liable to girdle the trees while snow is on the ground.

Another speaker urged upon the Reliables that they take up some object to work for, such as the Old People's Home at Chelsea. It was felt by the class however, that, inasmuch as all the Reliables belonged to other organizations in the church, all of which had distinct objects, that they hardly felt as though they could very comfortably add still another object to their cares. Alpena, Mich., Nov. 25.—Judge Emerick refused to mandamus the common council to compel it to grant a local sloonkeeper permission to remove his saloon from a hotel to another location. The council has twice refused to grant the permission. That the city charter gives the city the right to determine the location of such places of business within its limits and that the courts have no right to interfere is the basis of the court's decision.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Ypsilanti Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Ypsilanti citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the vidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Thomas Barnum, 23 Water St., Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "A heavy cold which settled on my kidneys affected hem and my back became so painful hat I could not stoop or lift. I neglected to treat the trouble and as a result, it became serious. When I found how bad my case really was, I began using medicine, but then it was too late and I got only temporary relief. It was difficult for me to sit down and just as hard to get up, owing to sharp twinges through my loins. The secretions from my kidneys were also unnatural. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s Drug Store, and the first few doses benefited me. By the time I had finished the contents of one box, my pains and aches had all disappeared and I felt like a different person. I think that I am justified in recommending them." (Statement given in 1906).

Time is the Test.

Mrs. Barnum was interviewed on September 20, 1911, and she added to the above: "I cheerfully confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they made a permanent cure in my case. I have had no further need of a kidney medicine since 1906."

Seven Months of Artificial Light In the Home

Sight is one of the most precious possessions of men, women and CHILDREN.

During seven months of the year, most of the close application of eyesight in your home is by artificial light.

Is the artificial light in your home good or bad?

Before the long evenings come when the family gathers near the LIGHT—look into this matter carefully.

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the best light in the home. It is economical and it is far more convenient than any other form of lighting.

Insurance companies rank electric light the safest.

Better have an estimate made for house wiring. Telephone No. 1.
